Jo's Notebook

Louisville, Wednesday Morning:
I feel like the character in the play "The Man Who Came To Dinner." I was in Louisville on Monday, following a conference at Frankfort with Governor Nunn in the interest of the Partners of the Alliance. I stopped off to visit in the Katherine Peden for Senate headquarters and found that I simply could not get away, because the excitement and enthusiasm in her headquarters is so electric that one wants to pitch in and work in the interest of her candidacy that is heading for a tremendous victory on May 28.

It is uncanny to note the vast amounts of unsolicited support that are pouring into her headquarters as the time for the balloting approaches, just four weeks away. This is justifiable and understanding. The support she is receiving is a tribute to her courage to get into the race at a time when courage was the essential to winning against the well entrenched and formidable incumbent, Thruston Morton.

In talking with many people in Western Kentucky about Katie's candidacy in the short time I have been in the headquarters, I find that she has tremendous support and an equal amount of respect and admiration, not only for her ability as an individual, but for her acumen as a political figure.

I hope to be seeing you next week. Meanwhile, by the time this little note reaches print, I will be back in the classrooms at Vanderbilt University.

Jo and I were patiently waiting our turn to file through customs inspection in Miami a couple of weeks ago. There we stood, passports in hand, baggage unlocked and spread out, and here came the inspector.

Just about that same instant Jo looked out the door into the far room full of people, spied old friend "Stu" Morrison of Miami out there walking around, wanted very badly to ask him about certain plans he may be making for this year's Festival, was afraid he would be gone by the time our inspection and clearance was completed, so she cut all the red tape right quickly.

She charged through the line, threw down her passport on the inspector's desk, and headed for the door.

"Wait a minute, lady," said the inspector. "You can't go out there until your baggage has been inspected and your papers cleared."

"But there's a man out there that I simply HAVE to see, and if I don't catch him now, he will be gone," she answered, never quite stopping.

The inspector turned to me. "You her husband?"

I confirmed the fact.
He raised his hands, with a shrug. "Well, if you want to let her go chasing after some other man, I guess it's all right with me."

We had quite a nice chat with Stu and his distinguished friend: the former publisher of "El Comercio" in Quito and uncle of the present publisher, also former Ecuadorian ambassador to several countries. He also happens to be Stu's father-in-law, arriving for a visit with the Morrison family.

It WAS quite a needle-in-a-haystack chance meet.

It was indeed interesting to read recently that the Illinois Central Railroad's new computer indicates that passenger service on its railroad holds promise of better times ahead, and that the line will accordingly gear its efforts to gaining more of it. That is of particular interest to the Twin Cities, since we still have a lot of passenger train service.

This week's "Kentucky Report" (published in Louisville) had this to say about another neighboring line that may be of interest to you:

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD personnel and passenger traffic managers and regional and national officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers joined in unprecedented sessions in Louisville last week, seeking a diagnosis and any possible remedies for the "sick" passenger train business. . . L&N Personnel Manager W. S. Scholl said he "gladly" arranged the meetings at the written request of W. C. Spencer, Evansville, Indiana, general chairman of BLE members of the L&N.

Both labor and management representatives said conferences marked a new and welcome re-

Chamber Hires Fantus For Industrial Study

L. M. McBride announced today that the Chamber of Commerce has employed the Fantus Company, Location Consultants, of Chicago for a two-day industrial appraisal of Fulton and South Fulton.

Harold Henderson, Chairman of the Chamber's Industrial Committee, made the recommendation that Fantus be hired to the Board of Directors at their last meeting.

"The Industrial committee feels that in this day of high competition for new industry, a survey of this type will prove most beneficial in pointing out not only the areas where our assets are better than other communities, but in pointing out the areas where we fall short and need to do more work. We believe a working guide to plant location opportunities will accelerate the location of new industry within the Twin Cities," Henderson said.

Other members of the Industrial Committee are: Rollin Shaw, James Hickman, Bob Graham, James Butts, Clyde Williams and Bob Morgan.

The appraisal will be conducted on May the sixth and seventh by Ronald M. Reiffer. Reiffer is a Vice President of the Fantus Company and will arrive in the Twin Cities on May fifth.

Meetings with engineers, assessors, school superintendents, various plant supervisors, visiting the industrial sites, etc. will consume the greater part of Monday and until noon Tuesday.

At 12:30 Tuesday there will be a luncheon and industrial conference at which time a report on the appraisal of the communities will be given. This meeting will last until approximately 4:30 and is open to the general public. Place of the meeting will be announced later. Both Henderson and McBride encouraged everyone who is interested in the industrial growth of the Twin Cities, to plan now to attend this meeting.

Fulton County Listed As Poverty-Stricken; One of Nation's Hungriest

A report, datelined Washington D. C. and carried in Kentucky newspapers Monday to the effect that "Fulton County is listed as one of the hungriest of the Nation's poverty Counties," was greeted with anger and amazement here Tuesday.

The report's absurd conclusion was evidently drawn from the fact that since nearly half of the County's population has an annual income of less than $2,500, which the Federal government has set by decree as the poverty level, it therefore must follow that over half of the county's families have no food in the refrigerator and are starving to death.

Says The Report!

Eleven Kentucky counties—including Fulton—are among the nation's hungriest, according to a report issued in Washington, D. C. Monday.

The report, titled "Hunger U. S. A.," sets the number of starving Americans at 10 million and charges that food distribution programs fail to reach the majority of the nation's poor.

The report estimates that 45.8 per cent of Fulton County's 1967 population (11,265) live below the poverty level. Of the 45.8 per cent, only one-third receive federal assistance.

Other Kentucky counties named by the report are Bath, Clinton, Garrard, Knox, Lewis, McCreary, Martin, Morgan, Powell and Robertson.

The report, compiled by the Citizen's Board of Inquiry into Hunger and Malnutrition, is the first study of its kind by a non-governmental organization. Its 25 members, supported by grants from seven foundations, conducted 10 months of hearings and investigations in 10 states.

"If you will go look, you will find America a shocking place," wrote co-chairman Benjamin E. Mays, President Emeritus of Morehead College, Atlanta, Ga., and Leslie W. Dunbar, Executive Director of the Field Foundation, New York. "No other Western nation permits such a large proportion of its people to endure the lives we press on the poor."

Counters Judge Cruce

"I read the story Tuesday morning," said Fulton County Judge John E. Cruce, "and it made me mad as hell. There is no starvation or malnutrition in this county that I know about, and I would know if there was."

Fulton County was the only Western Kentucky county on the committee's list. It is largely rural, and one of the few cotton-growing counties in Kentucky.

Judge Cruce said Fulton County is currently distributing surplus foods from the U. S. Department of Agriculture to about 400 families, and the foods seem adequate. He said the county has applied to be placed on the food-stamp program, and he expects approval of the application in July.

But a slightly different point of view was expressed by Michael Shapiro, director of the anti-poverty program which serves Fulton County, said that nearly half of Fulton County's families have an annual income of less than $2,500, well below the federal defined poverty level, indicating that they would be hard pressed to adequately feed their families.

A Reporter's Survey:

A representative of the Fulton County Public Assistance Office located at Fulton told a reporter Tuesday that she knew of no people in Fulton County who go hungry. Mrs. John Watts, school lunch director for Fulton County schools, said that she knows that there are no school children in the county who go hungry.

Mrs. Watts said that all students at Riverview Elementary School at Hickman receive free lunches and pay only 5 cents for their breakfast. At Western School, 99 per cent of the students receive free lunches while the other 1 per cent pay only 10 cents each. The Western students may also get breakfast for 5 cents each.

In other county schools, Cayce Elementary, Hickman Elementary, and Fulton County High School at Hickman, 35 per cent of the children either receive free or 10-cent lunches.

The free lunch program has been in effect in the Fulton County school system for the past two years, under the Title I program where federal money is made available to the county for such purposes.

Mrs. Reginald Williamson, manager of the Carr Institute Cafeteria at Fulton, where the majority of students from Carr Elementary and Fulton High School have lunch, said that approximately 20 needy students receive free lunches. Three high school boys choose to work for their noon-time meal.

"We try our best with the aid of the teachers to see that no student goes hungry," Mrs. Williamson said.

A representative of the county public assistance office said, "I am sure none of my cases and none of the other workers' cases go hungry."

It was pointed out to a reporter that besides getting the welfare checks, needy people also receive food commodities plus medical aid,

This Is "Salute To Industry" Week In The Twin Cities: A Well-Deserved Tribute To All

Throughout Kentucky, this is "Industry Appreciation Week" . . . a practice begun several years ago by forward-thinking administrations, not only to call every community's attention to renewed efforts to get new industry, but to focus its attention on the industries that it has.

The News joins the governments of Fulton and South Fulton in saluting our local industries, the mainstay of our local economic life. No matter how small some of them may be, they yet make, each one of them, important contributions to the well-being and the stability of the community. And as they grow, so grows the community.

In most States, and Kentucky certainly is no exception, some eighty percent of industrial expansion is the result of expansion of existing industry already there. As one looks around the Twin Cities at such industries as Pure Milk Company and Henry I. Siegel, one realizes that today's size and scope of operations were expanded, little by little, from humble beginnings right here at home.

The Kentucky industrial challenge lies mainly in expansion of present industry rather in the establishment of new plants, according to panelists at the recent annual meeting of the State Chamber of Commerce. We agree with Western Kentucky Gas Company President William Neal that local industrial committees are needed to communicate with industries on their problems, assure that new industry representatives are given opportunity to participate in community affairs and coordinate other matters of mutual concern.

If a few ingrained local die-hards tend to always regard a new manager or personnel of a new firm as "intruders" and "foreigners" to their smug little circle, we prefer to regard them as "new life" and "progress" upward, which they are. May we have the pleasure of seeing many more newcomers as the days pass.

Kentucky's Farm Income Up $50 Million Over '66; Billion-Dollar Annual Receipt Are In Sight

Just four years ago Governor Breathitt established what became known as the Governor's Commission on Agriculture. It was composed of the Dean of the College of Agriculture, Commissioners of Agriculture and Natural Resources and thirteen farmer members representing both political parties, all types of agriculture and all sections of the state.

The purpose of the Commission was to coordinate the efforts of agricultural agencies and organizations towards increasing Kentucky's farm income, with the goal of reaching a billion dollars, at the earliest possible date. Special committees studied each of the major farm enterprises and made recommendations that, if put into effect, would materially increase the state's income. In order to activate the recommendations a film entitled "A New Look at the Land", was made and copies were widely distributed to rural schools and organizations. Three Governor's Conferences on Agriculture were held in Louisville and many smaller meetings were held throughout the state. Motivation was an important part of the Commission's work.

The Commission commanded considerable prestige by virtue of the Governor serving as its Chairman and its Executive Director being on the Governor's staff. For that reason it was able to initiate or accelerate many programs that were already proposed or under way. For instance, farm leaders for many years had been interested in doing special promotional work for such products as Kentucky country hams; sorgham molasses and such items in which the state excels. A pilot program featuring "Gourmet Quality" country hams was started last year and ham producers report very satisfactory results from it.

It is difficult to evaluate the success of the Commission. Undoubtedly, of the long time trend in agriculture, during the period was a continuation of the long time trend in agriculture. Thru the efforts of established agencies, such as the Cooperative Extension and Soil Conservation Services and others, and to the inflationary movement in the nation's economy.

Progress is determined not only by comparing the state's present statistics with those of previous years but also by comparing our progress with that of other states. Kentucky's progress in hog production has been notably good. From 1960 to 1966 the state's income from hogs increased 15 percent and the state's share of the national hog income increased from 2.1 percent to 2.7 percent for the six-year period.

The state's cash from receipts during the years of the Governor's Commission increased from $677 million in 1963 to $805 million in 1967. Only four states among the fifty showed an increase in farm marketing and government payments in 1967 over 1966. Kentucky was one of these four. Kentucky's 1967 income from these sources showed an increase of $50 million above 1966. Only one of the seven states touching Kentucky showed an increase for the period (Virginia, with $11 million). Other bordering states dropped back in income ranging from one to 181 million dollars. If Kentucky maintains its 1967 rate of increase the magic billion dollar income will be attained by 1972! That's a challenge to the young leaders of the state.

On a visit to Portland, Oregon, he expressed thoughts that are good medicine in these days of confusion. Among other things, he said, " . . . I'm looking forward to the next 10 years as the best years of my life . . . I belong to too many organizations, like the 4-H that represent young people and I meet too many outstanding examples of today's youth to sour on any of them. The occasion of Mr. Penny's visit to Portland was the presentation of scholarships to young 4-H leaders made possible by a grant from his company. His presence and faith are an inspiration.

POET'S CORNER

LOYALTY

He may be six kinds of a liar,
He may be ten kinds of a fool,
He may be a wicked high-flyer
Beyond any reason or rule;
There may be a shadow above him
Of ruin and woes to impend,
And I may not respect, but I love him,
Because - well, because he's my friend.

I know he has faults by the billion,
But his faults are a portion of him;
I know that his record's vermillion,
And he's far from the sweet Seraphim;
But he's always been square with yours truly,
Ready to give or to lend,
And if he is wild and unruly,
I love him - because he's my friend.

I criticize him, but I do it
In just a frank, comradely key,
And back-biting gossips will rue it
If ever they knock him to me!
I never made diagrams of him
No maps of his soul have I penned;
I don't analyze - I just love him,
Because - well, because he's my friend.

JOHN 12:20-36

TEXT:

John 12:35: "Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light."

Is there one of us who, looking back over the years, has not had his luminous hours—those soul stirring experiences when it seemed as if the heavens opened and we looked into the very heart of God? And is it not true to say that, in those periods of storm and stress which life has brought us, it was the memory of those luminous hours which sustained us? The luminous hours of life are not confined to those acts and practices which we associate with the spiritual life, such as prayer, meditation on the Bible, and worship, al-

Farmers feed the people of the world. Some kind of farming is found in every country in the world. Farms in The Netherlands and Denmark are noted for their fine milk and butter. Farmers in Italy and southern France grow fruits and grapes to make wine. The plains of southern Russia are covered with waving wheat. Farmers in Germany grow fields of potatoes. The farmers of India grow cotton and rice. Central America's farms are famous for coffee and bananas. Canada is noted for its wheat.

There are many kinds of farms in the United States. Most of them grow several kinds of plants and raise several different kinds of animals. But other American farms raise only one main product, such as cotton, corn, wheat, cattle, or chickens.

Let's look at a few books that are in the library that would be of interest to farmers.

In SWINE PRODUCTION, 2nd edition, by Clarence Bundy and Ronald Diggins, the authors present in simple terms the latest developments in production and marketing. They have relied heavily on their experience of the past 35 years, during which they have faced most of the problems that confront those engaged in this business. Also, their work with farmers and farm youth in the field of vocational agriculture has given them first-hand knowledge of their needs. Each phase of swine production has been handled in a systematic manner. Each chapter deals with a specific area, and the subject matter within the chapter is logically organized. Some areas covered are: breeds of swine, selection of breeding and feeding stock, feed selection in swine nutrition, swine breeding, pasture crops for swine, buildings and equipment, disease and parasite control, swine marketing, fitting and showing.

FARM BUSINESS MANAGEMENT by Emery Castle provides a comprehensive introduction to the recognized methods and analytical tools of farm business management. The book has five major divisions. The first presents an overview of the problems faced by the farm manager and details his specific functions. The second provides an introduction to the tools of the decisionmaking process, highlighting the importance and specific uses of farm records as a prime analytical tool; basic economic principles with direct applicability to farm management are introduced. In the third section, the acquisition of the factors of production and size of farm are treated prior to a discussion of the selection and combination of enterprises. The fourth section examines management problems associated with particular enterprises and factors of production. The final section examines the business and economic factors affecting farm organization and management; analytical tools are provided to determine how adequately the farm management process is adjusting to economic and technological change. Throughout the book, problems are treated in the sequence usually faced by the farm manager. By using applications from a wide variety of agricultural regions, the authors avoid undue emphasis to the particular problems of specific geographical areas. The book is designed for flexibility in use; each chapter is independent and complete in itself. Graphs, tables, and other illustrative materials accompany the text.

In ADEQUATE WIRING FOR HOME AND FARM E. W. Jones & J. L. Johnston, tell things that all of us should know about electricity. They tell about its uses, its hazards, its control, and about the wiring systems that carry it into our homes. The aim in preparing this book has been to express as clearly and simply as possible the rules and principles on which the wiring of homes and farms are based. Emphasis is placed on the planning and designing of wiring systems as well as installation. The requirements of safety, adequacy, and durability are stressed. The principles of voltage drop, wire size, and carrying capacity are applied to practical system design in considerable detail. References to helpful literature are listed at the ends of chapters.

BUCKHORN LAKE

Buckhorn Dam on the Middle Fork of the Kentucky River in Perry County created a lake 30 miles long, which is the setting for Buckhorn State Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stokes, Jr., were host and hostess at a reception Sunday afternoon in their home at Hickman, at which time the engagement of their daughter, Sandra, to Joe Bolin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Bowlin of Clinton, was announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes greeted their guests in the court-yard and the guests of honor received at the entrance. Miss Stokes was radiant in an all white dress of Venice lace on silk, sheer organza fashioned empire, with Victorian neck-line.

An arrangement of gladioli blooms flanked the receiving line site.

Announcements were in charge of Mrs. Olney Johnson, Mrs. Harold Rice, Mrs. Roland Green and Mrs. Hugh Lattus, and were miniature marriage licenses, encircled with gold wedding bands, stating "This certifies that Sandra and Joe are engaged and will be married on August 10, 1968."

The coffee table was set up in the living room and was covered with a pink net cloth; applied with pink and white dogwood, butterflies, bluebirds and nests against the airiness of lace. The centerpiece was of white roses, stephanotis, lilies of the valley and leather-leaf ferns artistically descending from five-branched silver candelabra, creating a picture of a full, yet delicate, design. Coffee and tea were served from a silver service which was a gift to the host and hostess on their wedding day, twenty-five years ago. The coffee and tea were poured by Mrs. James M. Calvin, Mrs. Elvis J. Stahr and Mrs. Robert Sanger and the cake was cut by Mrs. W. B. Amberg, Mrs. Ellis Dobson, Mrs. W. C. Hales, Sr., and Mrs. James A. Whipple. During the afternoon piano selections were played by Mrs. F. C. Heerde of Slead Creek, Gilbertsville, and by Mrs. Jessie F. McNeill and Mrs. Paul Stahr.

Punch was served from a table in the family room, centered with an epergne holding clusters of white rosebuds and carnations, with lily of the valley and rose foliage. The five-branched silver candelabra added a touch of elegance. Serving the punch were Mrs. James Allen Mitchell of Mayfield, Mrs. Harold Rice, Mrs. George N. Helm and Mrs. Luby Roper.

Arrangements of gladioli, carnations, pale pink and white iris were placed at vantage points throughout the house.

Roaming hostesses were Mrs. Cubb Rouse of Alice, Texas, and Mrs. Fred Stokes, Jr., grandmothers of the bride-to-be, Mrs. Henry Cowgill, Mrs. Albert L. Lankford, Mrs. Roscoe Stone, Mrs. Earl Ezell, Mrs. Charles Travis and Mrs. R. B. Goadler.

More than three hundred guests attended.

Kentucky Long Rifle Team Will Have Tryouts April 27 For All

The first try-out match for the 1968 Kentucky Longrifle term is scheduled for the weekend of Saturday, April 27th, at the range of the Longriflemen, Inc., just south of Morehead. The range is located on Kentucky 519—five miles south of U. S. 60.

Any Kentuckian who shoots a flintlock Kentucky longrifle is urged to attend. No prior contact is necessary; first time visitors will be met at the gate and made welcome.

There is one stipulation in regard to a first time shooter. He must shoot at both shoots and have his score averaged, in order to qualify for the longrifle team. The dates for the second shoot will be determined at the Morehead meeting.

Each year, every Kentucky longrifle shooter is given the opportunity to make the team, which for the year will represent Kentucky at official flintlock matches and other ceremonial functions requiring a pioneer atmosphere.

Officially sanctioned by the state, the Corps of Longriflemen is entering its sixth year, during which time it has shot in eleven matches against other states and has not lost a match. The team selected this year will enter similar competitions.

Two teams will be selected solely by the highest scores—the first and second team. The second team members fill in for the first team when, for any reason, they are not able to attend a match. In at least one match during the year, both teams will fire in competition.

CHESTNUT GLADE

By Mrs. Harvey Vaughn

Plans have been made for a Volunteer Cancer Crusade worker to call at each home in the community and the county during the month of April. It is hoped that each person called upon will make a generous contribution to this most worthy cause, for we never know who the next victim may be.

Ches Morrison continues to improve at his home, after being dismissed from the hospital last week. Sympathy is extended to the family of Miss Edna Vaughan, who unexpectedly passed away last week. Funeral service was at New Hope Methodist Church, where she was a member.

Mrs. Van Brann has returned to her home in Memphis, after spending last week with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Vaughn and attending the bedside of Mrs. Minnie Brann, who is critically ill in the Hillview Nursing Home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ross have moved into their beautiful new home, recently completed. Best wishes for many years to enjoy this modern home in their retirement from the grocery business they have been operating in Ruthville for the past several years.

Mrs. Vada Simpson's new home in Martin appears to be nearing completion.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Reams, from Lansing, and Ted Reams, from Detroit, have been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Reams, and Dorothy and other relatives in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Bowden, of Detroit, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Vaughn and Mrs. Van Brann enjoyed a birthday dinner with Mrs. Lucy Gibbs last Sunday.

It is hoped that everyone will pay a visit to their local library or bookmobile station during the week of April 21-27, in recognition of National Library week. All regular readers should read an extra book during this time.

"We cannot increase the number of days that we have to live, but we can greatly improve the quality of our living by constructing things of beauty," was the thought of the lesson presented by Mrs. Paul Reams when she reviewed the lesson J. E. McMahan taught the gardening leaders at the recent county-wide meeting. He explained how to make proper selection of shrubs and plants for different results. Mrs. Reams presented this lesson to the Chestnut Glade Club when they met for the regular meeting in the home of Mrs. John Hazelwood, with Mrs. Orvin Morrison co-hostess.

The song, "Springtime In The Rockies," was directed by Mrs. W. C. Morrison and the devotional was given by Mrs. Laverne Overby.

The roll call was answered by members showing their favorite hat.

Plans were made for participation in the sewing machine clinic to be at Dresden. Mrs. Laverne Owensby presented the food and nutrition leaders' lesson by urging that attention be given to including the "Basic Four" in each meal for improved health. Mrs. Jimmie Westbrook, clothing leader, gave tips on the use of polyester garments and fabrics.

We hope many members of the club are serving delicious hot bread and rolls, after the interesting lesson presented by the Home Agent, Mrs. Grace Prince, who gave several delicious recipes for preparing several items, included in the "Basic Four".

Delicious refreshments were served to one hundred percent of the members, Mrs. Prince and one visitor, Mrs. Van Brann of Memphis.

The next meeting will be on May 16 at 1:30 p. m., in the home of Mrs. Fred Vaughan. Visitors are cordially invited.

THE PARSON SPEAKS

though they are most likely to be experienced by the man whose spiritual life is kept fresh by these exercises.

God's varied revelation. For some of us insight has come through an illuminating book. A single word or sentence or a paragraph has enlarged our vision or cleared up a difficulty, and in a flash life has taken new meaning.

Nature, too, has again and again flashed new truth into our minds, which made us sure of God beyond all argument. Watching a dying sunset or ripe corn glistening in the sunshine or the blue of the sea, God has become real to us beyond all denial.

Sometimes life itself has given wings to sight. There was a day when something happened. A heroic deed was witnessed, or a kindly word was overheard, or a generous act done to us, and a cord was touched in our hearts which vibrates still.

And yet, freely and gladly admitting God's many ways of revealing himself, for most of us life's soul-stirring experiences come through our religious exercises. Taking God at His word, he has blessed us. While we were at prayer we felt a glow in our hearts. "While I was musing, the fire burned." Or while we were reading God's word or hearing it read, a thought gripped our minds, allaying fears and instilling peace.

Or was it when we were listening to the preacher seeking to interpret from the standpoint of God that we discovered what God could make of our lives, or do through them, and from that moment a new purpose possessed our souls.

That God for life's luminous hours, those soul-stirring experiences when He speaks to us, and His spirit touches our spirits.

Using the luminous hours. Now part of the secret of victorious living is to seize the luminous hours of life and live in the light, and warmth of them as long as possible. The luminous hours come to us from God's gracious hand. He visits us Himself. There is an old Chinese poet who gives this as his counsel: "Revere the heavenly moods, ephemeral though they seem." And did not our Lord himself say: "Yet a little while is the light with you." "Walk while ye have the light?"

The very reason life's luminous hours are sent to us is that we should yield to the prompting within our hearts to frame new ideals, to commit ourselves more deeply to Christ's way of life, to embark on some suggested service for His kingdom. This prompting which often accompanies life's luminous hours is inspired by God. But to resist such prompting is to turn our backs on the light, to miss the moment of opportunity to grow in grace, or to further Christ's Kingdom.

PLANTING CORN IN FESCUE SOD

Last week during wet weather while all Obion County farmers were wanting to get cranked up full speed planting corn, James Harold Abbott at Glass was planting corn full speed with his new no till sod planter in a beautiful field of old fescue grass. Mr. Abbott plans to plant about 100 acres of corn in fescue sod this year, and a lot of Obion County farmers will be watching the results. Other Obion County farmers with sod planters include Malcomb Cook, and Louis Smith.

Research and farmer experience in Tennessee and surrounding states has shown that corn can be produced successfully without preparing a conventional seedbed. Most of the work has been done by planting directly in fescue, orchardgrass or ryegrass sods, small grain stubble or in corn, cotton or soybean stubble from the previous year's crop. This method of producing corn has the following advantages over the conventional method of preparing a seedbed before planting the corn. 1. Soil erosion is reduced. 2. Corn can be produced on slopes not normally used for corn production. 3. Seedbed preparation is eliminated, reducing cost of production. 4. The elimination of seedbed preparation makes it possible to plant earlier.

The grass and weeds are controlled by using atrazine at 2 pounds of active ingredients plus paraquat at 0.5 pounds active ingredients per acre plus a surfactant or atrazine at 3 pounds active ingredient per acre plus a surfactant. Since paraquat is inactive soon after application, the atrazine-paraquat mixture results in less soil residue problems than the 3 pounds of atrazine. This mixture also results in a quick top-kill of existing vegetation. This appears to be an advantage, especially during drought periods.

If planting in a crop stubble where no vegetation exists, 2 pounds of atrazine alone should be adequate.

TOM WADE HAS GOOD SALE

Mr. Tom Wade, Kenton, Tennessee, was well satisfied with the sale of his Hereford Cattle last week. 190 lots averaged $395, 38 bulls averaged $420 and 152 females averaged $389. The high selling bull was Mr. Wade's Winrock bull selling for $1,160 to Nick Korn, Brownsville, Tennessee. Two cows and calves sold for $785 - one going to C. A. Jones, Tiptonville, Mississippi and the other to Coy Miller, Symsonia, Ky. The hottest thing about the sale was a group of bred heifers that averaged over $500. Large crowd of buyers with cattle serving into Tennessee, Kentucky, Nebraska, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Alabama, and Ohio.

$10 to $20 PER CALF

Every fall we notice a number of calves in Obion County where the cattleman looses $10 to $20 per calf by failing to Dehorn and Castrate. Some management jobs you should do this month—complete the job of castrating and dehorning - 1. Run the calves through the chute and headgate. 2. Use Barnes Dehorner on calves over 3 months of age. 3. Vaccinate all calves for blackleg and malignant edema. As a precaution in blackleg infected areas, consider revaccination in the fall.

Seems like we may have some spring weather. If it will stop raining, folks could farm some and plant gardens and flowers.

Riley Smith, of Fulton, were noon guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. DeMyer Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Omer Smith came in the afternoon.

Mrs. Wallace Cunningham and Mrs. Kieth Roberts, of Paducah, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stem.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lowe and DeWitt Matthews are spending today at Kentucky Lake. Here's hoping they get a lot of fish.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall DeMyer have returned to their home in Lansing, Mich., after a two weeks visit with relatives here.

Passenger Traffic Manager R. P. Ethridge cited three reasons for discontinuance of the Humming Bird with its 922-mile daily runs between Cincinnati (via Louisville) and New Orleans: loss of approximately $875,000 annual mail-hauling revenue, loss of the gateway to the midwest when the C&EI discontinued the Georgian between Evansville and Chicago, and the fact that automobiles haul 89 per cent of all inter-city passenger traffic while railroads get only 1.7 per cent.

Most participants in the meeting agreed that immediate future of passenger service nationally probably lies in 50 to 200-mile service based upon speed, convenience, connections, courtesy and price.
